A LITTLE TIME. JUST THE TWO OF YOU.

Offline Mini-Date Pack

4 ready-to-play dates for two

A bonus offline companion to your interactive Date Night WebApp.

Cozy
Warm and unhurried

Funny
Light and playful

Romantic
A little more spark

Competitive
Friendly rivalry

Connect / Predict / Play / Challenge / Closer

One page. Five activities. No prep.

YOUR OFFLINE DATE, MADE SIMPLE

How it works

Pick one date page, settle in together and start at the top. You only need each other - no props, preparation or scorekeeping.

01 Pick a vibe.

Choose Cozy, Funny, Romantic or Competitive. Romantic has a little more spark; the other dates keep things Sweet.

02 Start with Connect.

Take turns with the opening activity. Listening is part of the date.

03 Follow all five stages.

Move through Predict, Play, Challenge and Closer in order. For Predict, share your guesses before reading the comparison instruction.

04 Go at your own pace.

Read each activity aloud. Take as long as feels good, and make any activity your own.

05 No prep. No score. No pressure.

Keep it kind and playful. The point is doing something together, not getting anything right.

Want a different date next time?

For personalized combinations, use the interactive Date Night WebApp: choose your vibe, 15 or 30 minutes, and Sweet or Flirty. Randomized dates, Swap and Reveal keep the experience fresh.

PRINTING: Choose the matching paper size and print at Actual Size / 100%. Single-sided is simplest; print only the date page you want. No cutting required.

YOUR FIVE-PART DATE / SWEET

Cozy Date

Slow down. Make a little room for each other.

01

CONNECT

Finish this sentence in turn: "A tiny thing that helps me unwind is..." Choose one you could share on an ordinary evening.

02

PREDICT

Picture your partner's ideal end to a busy day: quiet company, a long chat or something to laugh at. Choose their answer before asking them.

> NOW COMPARE YOUR ANSWERS
>
> Say your guesses first. Each reveal your choice and the small detail that would make it feel just right.

03

PLAY

Design an imaginary room made for the two of you. Build it aloud in four rounds: comfort, delight, quiet and one impossible feature; spend a little time exploring each other's additions.

04

CHALLENGE

Create the smallest possible celebration using only your hands. Teach it to each other and perform your two versions together.

05

CLOSER

Make a spoken postcard from tonight: each choose a moment, a detail and a feeling you would put on it. Share your versions with each other and end with one line you would keep.

YOUR FIVE-PART DATE / SWEET

Funny Date

Less serious. More reasons to laugh.

01

CONNECT

Give today a made-up episode title. Trade the story behind your titles, including the detail that would make the trailer.

02

PREDICT

An imaginary remote can mute hiccups, summon a perfect snack or translate animal thoughts. Which button would your partner press first?

> NOW COMPARE YOUR ANSWERS
>
> Reveal your choices together. Explain the first situation in which you would use your button.

03

PLAY

Invent a useless household gadget together. Give it a name, a ridiculous feature and a sales pitch delivered by both of you.

04

CHALLENGE

Hold three tiny debates: square pillows versus round pillows, whispering robots versus singing doors, and pockets versus capes. Each gets about a minute to make a case per round; change sides for the last one.

05

CLOSER

Invent a short sign-off for tonight using a detail you each enjoyed. Trade the stories behind your choices, combine them into one phrase and choose a playful or quiet way to say it together to end the date.

YOUR FIVE-PART DATE / A LITTLE MORE SPARK

Romantic Date

A little more attention. A little more spark.

01

CONNECT

Trade three tiny details that make you feel drawn to your partner: a look, a habit or a way they do something ordinary. Take turns telling the small story behind each one and leave time to hear what they noticed about you.

02

PREDICT

Predict your partner's favourite kind of anticipation: a playful clue, a direct invitation or a surprise detail. Think of a tasteful example for your guess.

> NOW COMPARE YOUR ANSWERS
>
> Reveal your real preferences. Explain which detail makes anticipation fun for you, then compare your examples.

03

PLAY

Build a scene with obvious chemistry and no romantic words. Choose a setting, improvise a short exchange, then change who makes the first move in the scene.

04

CHALLENGE

Describe an imaginary date destination using only five words. Your partner gets three guesses before you reveal it; exchange roles and make the second round a little more tempting.

05

CLOSER

Choose one small way to end with a little more spark: a warm compliment, a held gaze or an offered hand. Each suggest your preference and choose an ending you both welcome.

YOUR FIVE-PART DATE / SWEET

Competitive Date

Friendly rivalry. No score to settle.

01

CONNECT

Choose one everyday talent you admire in each other. Explain where you would recruit your partner to use it on an imaginary two-person team.

02

PREDICT

In three rounds, predict which your partner would rather master: cooking or storytelling, fixing things or finding things, planning or improvising. Give a reason for each guess.

> NOW COMPARE YOUR ANSWERS
>
> Reveal your actual choices one pair at a time. Test one prediction with a tiny demonstration of the skill you picked.

03

PLAY

Solve a mystery you invent together: why is there a tiny door behind the sofa? Alternate adding clues, discuss two possible explanations and agree on a final reveal.

04

CHALLENGE

Build a sound sequence together: one person makes a sound, the other repeats it and adds one. Keep extending it at an easy pace, then try a second sequence with roles reversed.

05

CLOSER

Each offer one tiny, no-cost date you could share at home another time. Pick the idea you are both most curious about and end by inviting each other to it.